Studying in Canada

As an international student, you may be required to obtain a study permit issued by the Canadian government's Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) department prior to beginning your studies. You may apply once you receive your official letter of acceptance from Saint Mary's University. We recommend applying early for your permit as processing times can vary.

Studying in Canada as an international student offers numerous potential benefits, including the opportunity to work while studying, obtaining a post-graduate work permit, and exploring immigration programs and pathways. Students are granted these allowances through IRCC, and more information can be found at canada.ca/studyincanada.

International students can contact the Saint Mary's International Student Centre to obtain more information specific to their situation: smu.ca/isc.

Sustainable Development Goals in research

Sobey is a proud signatory to the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME) initiative of the United Nations. PRME provides a framework for academic institutions to advance the broader cause of corporate social responsibility and incorporate universal values into curricula and research. Sobey doctoral students and faculty engage in research on a variety of important issues that tie into many of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), including the poverty-climate change nexus, social entrepreneurship, the role of gender in venture capitalism and much more.

Faculty research expertise

Our faculty are research experts in diverse areas including accounting, economics, finance, management, and marketing. Sobey faculty are engaged in research that has a direct impact on the local and global business communities.

A key goal of our strategic plan

Our five-year strategic plan, Elevating Impact, embodies the vision and aspirations of the Sobey School of Business. One of the key goals is to foster an environment of intellectual discovery that inspires research excellence, encourages collaboration and serves society. Research by our doctoral students helps drive this goal forward.
